THE HEALTH BOARD.

Yesterday's Meeting Results in Some Surprises for the Republicans.

The Democrats Reorganize the Board By Electing a President and Secretary.

Dr. Lomax Reappointed and Commissloned-Dr. Partridge but Little Inclined to Contest-What Will Dr. Elder Do?

The State Board of Health muddle culminated yesterday in a complete division of the factions, both of which held meetings and transacted business, the two Damocratic members with Dr. Boots organizing a separate board and electing Dr. Metcal! Secretery. Drs. Lomax, Partridge and Elder were in the office when Drs. Seawright, Frisch and Boots entered, and Dr. Fritsch moved that Dr. Seawright act as Chairman, Dr. Boots putting the question and stating that "We do not recognize you as a member, be cause you have not qualified according to law." Drs. Seawright. Boots and Fritsch voted for the motion, and Drs. Lomax, Partrid, e and Eider sgainst it. The motion was declared carried, and a motion that Dr. Fritsch act as temporary Secretary was carried by a similar vote. Permanent organization was then made by the election of Dr. Seawright as President and Dr. Metcalf as Secretary, the three Republicans voting against and the three Democrats in favor of it, and Dr. Seawright, declaring the elections made, as in the election of the temporary efficers. On motion of Dr. Seawright the board was declared adjourned until 2 o'clock, and the Democrats withdre w. In the meantime, Drs. Lomax, Partridge and Elder were holding a meeting, and after transacting routine business adjourned to meet on the first Thursday in June, which is the regular quarterly meeting of the board The Democratic members returned at 2 bringing Dr. Metcalf, their new Sec retary, with them, and proceeded to transact business. Dr. Boots was instructed to visit certain towns in the State and make inspection with reference to the sanitary condition of the same. On motion it was determined to make a formal demand for the books, records and papers of the office, and Dr. Seawright and the new Secretary marched into the room where Dr. Elder was sitting, and Dr. Seawright said: "Dr. Elder, I am instructed to make formal demand for books, papers and records of State Board of Health office, I now make the demand." Dr. Elder turned round upon his chair and replied: "I would be glad to accommodate you, gentlemen, in any reasonable-demand, but the State Board of Healthihas adjourned till the first Thursday in June, and I am instructed to preserve the books, papers and records and keep them in my possession, and I can not surrender them to any one, and especially not to an illegally constituted authority. Acting under the instructions of the State Board of Health, and as its executive officer, I refuse to surrender the books, papers and records of the office." Dr. Seawright turned away, saying: "Come go home with me, Elder, and I'll convert you." He then reported the refusal to the Democratic members and other business was taken up. Dr. Metcalf's salary as Secretary was fixed at $1,200; the removal of the telephone instrument was ordered, and the Secretary was ordered to purchase locks and have them placed upon the doors to the office, Dr. Boots remarking that "outside parties have keys," evidently meaning Dr. Elder. After ordering a circular to be issued to all local Boards of Health instructing them regarding the action of the board and that Dr. Metcalf was elected Secretary, the new board adjourned to meet again on the first Tuesday in June, two days earlier than the time fixed by the Republican mem-

When the Republican board seljourned, Dr. Elder, as has been the custom, gave Drs. Lomax and Partridge vouchers for their expenses in coming to and returning from the meeting, out when these were presented to the Auditor of State for his warrant on the Treasury for the amount, that official declined to recognize Dr. Elder's authority to issue the vouchers, and payment was refused. Dr. Metcalf's youchers, approved by Dr. Seawright, allowing the expenses of Drs. Seawright, Fritsch and Boots, were honored at the Auditor's office and the amounts promptly paid. Under this showing, the Democrats have control of the appropriation for the board, and this is a decided advantage. As the case now stands, the Republicans have control of the racords of the office, but the matter of possession does not appear to be so well settled. The law requires the Secretary of Siste to furnish the office for the board, and whether the Secretary is in or out, the State official may be regarded as having control, and as being actually in possession. Before the Democratic members left the office Dr. Elder called them into his room and protested against the order justructing their Secretary to purchase looks for securing the doors. He declared that such action was unworthy of them as gentlemen, and cast an unmerited reflection upon him; he had been in charge of the cflice for some time, and his reputation as a gentleman and health officer was a sufficient guarantee, he thought, that he would not steal anything belonging to the office. The Democrats assured him that their object was simply to get possession of the office, and that any arrangement he and Metcalf could make would be satisfactory to them. From certain circumstances attending the movements of the new Secretary the reporter inferred that the locks would be changed between the going down and rising of the sun and that Dr. Elder would find himself locked out when he returned to the office this morning. When asked if this was not the programme, Dr. Metcalf replied: 'No. I reckon not: I suppose I shall not be in too great a hurry to wait for daylight to put them on."

In conversation with Dr. Elder he said that he was disgusted with the whole affair: that he was satisfied that the action of the Deinocratic members was illegal, and that the board could not be effective in any sense so long as the wrangle continued; he is the legal Secretary and proposes to hold on to the records of the office, and will discharge the duties of Secretary. Dr. Partridge was present and said that his attorney was positive that his membership was good in law, but the only question was whether the office was worth fighting for. He has retained counsel and will take under consideration for a few days the matter of making the fight. The very fact that he is considering "whether it will pay to make the fight" sufficiently indicates that the conclusion will be in the negative, for he certainly knows that no salary attaches to the position and that, as a to predict that his part of the contest is at an end.

The fact that Dr. Lomax accepted a commission from Governor Gray yesterday afternoon, was sworn in as a member of the Board of Health and filed a certified copy of his oath of office with the Secretary of State, argues conclusively that he was unwilling to risk his title to membership on the appoint-ment under which he was acting and no bet-ter evidence is needed that he has given up the ship and will not be a party to any legal steps that may be taken. On the hypothesis that Dr. Partridge won't fight, and Lomax, having accepted a com-mission from Governor Gray, now has no ground upon which to wage a legal con-troversy, Dr. Elder appears to be the only one left who has any interest in the matter. Whatever his disposition may be he can not act as Secretary except under great disadvantages. The Auditor will, of course, retuse to honor his vouchers, and in this way he will be left without money for paying for postage, printing or stationery, and he will hardly be inclined to provide those things just for the fun of being Secretary of a Board of Health which is practically without members. At best he could hold the office only till November, and the leaves would begin to fall before a decision of the question could be reached. Under all the circumstances the most prudent course that Dr. Elder can pur sue is to abandon the controversy and rest upon the laure's that he has earned as the executive officer of the board. A contest might hamper the board, and in this way result in evil to the State, especially as there is a probability that epidemic disease may visit Indiana during the coming season, and under such circumstances the people will need the earnest work of an untrammeled Board of Health.

At a la'e hour last night it was learned that Drs. Elder and Metcalf had had a conference and the latter had determined not to put any locks upon the door, having received a key to the office from Dr. Elder, and both are not now prepared for a physical entry into the office. Dr. Metcalf availed himself of the privilege or right, and was busily engaged last night till a late hour in sending out copies of the following circular to local health officials:

OFFICE OF THE INDIANA STATE BOARD ) OF HEALTH, May 8, 1885.

To County Health Officers: You are hereby notified that Dr. C. M. Metcalf ha- been duly elected Secretary of this Board, and you are instructed to address all communications legarding the work of your office to him.

A J Bever dge Secures the First Prize in the Inter-State Contest at Columbus, Ohio,

A Sentinel reporter met D. G. Phillips, of Madison, last evening, who has just returned from the Inter-State Collegiate Oratorical Contest at Columbus, O. Mr. Phillips | extend no further than telling a fan ly was very enthusiastic in his expressions of joy over the triumph of De Pauw University, and especially of his friend. A. J. Beveridge, who carried off the first prize. He spoke also of the lonesome feeling which oppresses a fellow, you know, when you go into an audience fall of sympathy for your friend who is to speak, and always near to amuse them. But the name J. D. Low, Greencastle; August Meyer, Fort find that he has no other friend there. He admils that his heart sunk when Indiana's | attached to the office of Gauger, because that representative rose to speak, but he still felt | chicial ass really less to do than any other his chances good for the prize. When Mr. Beveridge concluded his address the house rang with the applace of the delighted audience, and it was evident that, be the decision of the judges what it might, the voice of the audience was with the man who represented the Hoosier State.

There were six judges, as follows: On thought and composition, Hon. Samuel Clark, of towa; Hon, J. H. Holliday, of this city; Dr. J. H. Bayless of the Western Christian Advocate. On delivery, General Beatty, Dr. E. K. Young, of Akron., and Dr. George Hickman, of Cincinnati. Governor Hoadly was absent, otherwise be would have been the first judge on delivery. The orators spoke in the following order:

The first prize of $75 was given to A J. Beveridge, of DePanw University, Indiana, the sum of his rank being but fifteen, and the second prize of $50 was given to Victor E. Bender, of Knox College, Illinois, his rank amounting to nineteen. Mr. Phillips leaves for Greencastle on the early train this morning. Mr. Beveridge, the successful orator, will arrive in the city to-day on his way back, he having been detained to attend a reunion of his fraternity.

Stoughton Johnson's Condition. Stoughton Johnson, the colored child at 210 Elm street who was shot Thursday evening in the brain, recovered consciousness yesterday, and his ante-mortem statement was taken by Coroner Stratford. He said that Nelson raised the pistol, exclaimed, "Your money or your life," and immediately pulled the trigger. He retained consciousness during the entire day, and, although his condition is dangerous in the extreme, there is thought to be a chance for recovery. This is believed to be a possibility because of the fact that a number of persons have been shot in the brain and have recovered. Such, indeed, was the case with Cassius M. Black, who was shot three years ago in the Palmer Block. He remained unconscious for three days and a half without medical assistance, and when the doctor did come the wound

THE GAUGER'S TICKLER.

An Enterprising Reporter Discovers a New Government Office,

And After an Interesting Colloquy, Which Develops Much History, Writes It Up.

Day before yesterday an attache of a morning paper making his rounds entered the Collector's office in the Postoffice building, and approached the desk at which one of the deputies was engaged in his duties. On the desk was lying a blank indersed in large, black letters: "Report of the Gauger's Tickler," and as the eyes of the reporter fell upon it he smiled with that grim satisfaction which characterizes the fraternity when an item is unexpectedly found lying around loosely for want of a taker. For the benefit of the public it should be stated that the "Gauger's Tickler" is a record of the number of gallons of spirits gauged each day, and when a report is made at the end of each month it is called "the report of the Ganger's Tickler" because made up from the original sheet designated a "tickler." The name is also in use among merchants and bankers to designate a book in which is kept a registry of notes and debts. After eyeing the report for a short time, the following conversation took place between the Deputy and the reporter:

"Humph," said the reporter, "that is an office that I never heard of bafore." "Oh, it's been established a long time," said the Deputy. "The Gauger's Tickler," repeated the reporter, slowly, "What are the Tickler's duties?"

"Well, you see," said the Deputy, now appreciating the joke, "the office originated a long time ago, and is one the Democrats have fought persistently for twenty years. on the ground that it was unnecessary. It is really the only office under the Government that is a pure sinecure, the Tickler being employed only during the warm weather, but getting a yearly salary."

"But what are his duties?" "His duties are to afford the Gauger means of recreation during the warm season, when that official is suffering from ennui, more especially just after dinner, when the Gauger has saten heartily of onions and lettuce and is inclined rather to sleep than to work. He is called a Tickler for the reason that he may, in extreme cases, tickle the Ganger with a straw, but generally his privileges anecdote to keep him awake." Something after the etyle of the king's

"up" in English history than in Government blanks. "That's it exactly," said the Deputy, "and the office no doubt originated from the custom of the old English kings to keep a jester was changed, you know, and the Tickler was man in the revenue service, and therefore

"What is the Tickler's salary?" "About $1,200. You will be safe in putting it at that, anyway." Thus posted upon the newly-discovered Government official's duties, the reporter left, and yesterday morning the following itam appeared in the paper which he represents:

needs to be amused and kept awake."

GAUGER'S TICKLER. One officer under the Collector of Internal Revenue was omitted yesterday-that of Gaugar's Tickler, the salary of which is $1,200-well worth

BUNKO STEERERS ARRESTED.

The Police Take in Two Men Who Had Taken in a Stranger.

Two well-dressed, nice-looking bunko steerers, giving the names of John Rhinokes and A. Hicks, were arrested last evening by Patrolmen Boylan, Laporte and Clark, The arrest was made at the instance of a stock dealer of St. Louis, whose name could not be learned, but who claimed that they "roped" him for $10 by means of the old lottery dodge. These men, together with three other smooth individuals whom the coppers failed to capture, rented a room on South Illinois street some time since, and fitted it up in a manner that induced unsuspecting ones to think it was a railroad office. They then commenced business. One man remained in the office while the others would go out and get the "goose." The steerer invariably had a lottery ticket for $100 or thereabouts, and when he announced that fact the man behind the counter the same gentleman would write him out a worthless check for the amount. The result is that the man who is steered is induced to try his luck, and he generally goes in heavy on the first whirl in anticipation of drawing big money. All of the tickets he purchases are blanks, of course, and he finally comes to a realization of the fact that he has been taken in. The police are of the opinion that the St. Louis citizen is not the only man who has played sgainst the game. and will endeavor to make strong cases against the prisoners. They are keeping a sharp look for their accomplices.

The Maennerchor Concert. The Maennershor season closed last night with a concert in every respect worthy of the large and appreciative andience present. The programme was selected with a view of making the final concert, if possible, superior to those already given, and included some of the most taking works of the best composers. The mixed chorus, upon whom fell the main work for the evening. rendered their portion of the programme in a manner calling for the greatest praise. The "Spring," from Haydn's "Four Seasons," and including six distinct numbers, took up the entire second part, and the recitatives, aria, duet and trio, with the hearty support of the chorus, were sung in excelent taste. Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Frenzel and Mr. A. Heckler as the soloists, deservedly called forth the marked approval of the sudience. The six numbers of the first part included an overture by the orchestra, a mixed chorus selection from Tannhauser, vocal solos by the Misses Laura Hessling and Lottie Adams and Mr. Bennerscheidt, and a piano solo by Mr. William Kipp. Miss Lottie Adams, who is the vocalists of this city, possesses a beautiful and sympathetic | mezzo soprano voice. and the manner in which she sang aria frem "Ernini" gained for her the enthusisstic favor of the audience. Miss Laura Hessling and Mr. Bennerscheidt, who are time-honored favorites with the German people, added much to the spirit of the programme by the skill-ful and pleasing style in which they ren-dered their solos. Mr. William Kipp deserves special mention for his instrumental number, and the entire membership, with Professor Barns at the head, are to be congratulated upon so fitting a finale to such a successful season's labors. At the close of the concert all present indulged in dancing.

Yesterday's Zepnyr.

The wind yesterday blew a gale at times. In the afternoon a number of awnings on Illinois street swayed and twisted in a threatening manner. A number of workmen at North Indianapolis had a rough experience. They were roofing a house, and had put their shingles in piles over the roof. Ose particularly vicious blast struck the shingles and scattered tham over the vicinity, some of them being scattered three squares. A citizen passing along the street was struck in the face with the edge of a shingle and badly cut. Jerre Weakley was blown off the root and only saved himself from being thrown to the ground by hanging on to the eaves, from which he flapred gracefully like a flag. During the day the mo sture was pretty well dried off, the dust created and all of it utilized by the high winds. The demand for overcosts and g'oves was fashionable, and at night many a citizen went to bed to get warm. The usual lounging places were deserted, and it was too cold to "smile" or fight.

True Democracy. [General Patrick Collins' Boston Speech.] I belong to the Democratic party, as I understand it, which makes no distinction between rich and poor, white and black, high or lowly. (Applause.) I believe that the man who sweeps the streets, the man who drives the horses, the man who works in the mill or hammers at the bench, if he be an honest man, is quite as good as he who does the banking for the country or manages the great mercantile house. (Applauss.) I believe also that the honest man who came in the Cephalonia last week is as good an American five years hence when he is naturalized as the descendants of those who came in the May flower. (Great applause) There is no aristocracy in the Democratic party. One man with equal intelligence and equal indement and egga! honesty is as good as any other man. There are no grades, no social stratum in the great great Democratic party, and I stand here to protest against the canting and the lying of people and of newspapers who criticus Democrats. (Applause,) The Boston Advertiser and the Boston Journal have never an ugly word to say in criticlim of the mildest character against the men who, eight years ago, cheated the paople of the United States out of their legally elected President, or against any man who took office or received the stolen office, from Hayes down to Evarta.
